From the Heart - by Fr. Kern

We are coming up on February already and with it what I always refer to as the winter grind. With Christmas and New Years now in the distant past we tend to get cabin fever and deal with seasonal depression more than any other time of year. Simply being aware of this is a good place to begin, but even more than that to admit our vulnerability and keep ourselves extra focused on Jesus and His presence in our lives this time of year. Recognizing the presence of Jesus will not take away an experience of frustration with the weather or seasonal depression but it can aid us with a simple avenue of uniting our plight to Him. If serious, we should seek the help we need through the aid of professionals trained to help us through the pains of our lives, but if we find ourselves in a mini-funk this winter, turn to Jesus and allow His love to console your heart. In my life I often find that the times when I am willing to turn to Him instead of getting dissatisfied with whatever circumstance, I experience a greater peace and freedom to remain joyful and happy despite the grind we can find ourselves in.

This past week I was leading the discernment group at MSU and we began discussing trust in God. One of the guys asked, how can we learn to trust God? It struck me that no matter how many times we say I trust God or just go about our day thinking we trust Him, until we are at that moment of searching, wondering, asking God what He wants from our life we can sort of take our relationship with God for granted and suddenly realize how little we trust Him. I told the group that the best way to learn to trust God is to be completely honest with Him and transparent with your thoughts, feelings, and desires. When we reveal to God where we are truly at with His plan it opens us up and makes us more vulnerable to be able to know that He will guide us and lead us through our fears, hesitations, questions, or anxieties. This should resemble how the Christian learns to pray—making oneself vulnerable with God and speaking from the level of the heart and revealing our true self to God so that He can love us even despite or in the midst of our weakness.

Finally, next weekend we will have announced the diocesan pastoral plan. I am looking forward to this plan being announced so we can move beyond fear or anxiety and continue planning with our future and the mission of the Church. Please continue your prayers for this planning process in our diocese.

Deacon Chris will be leading a Bible study during Lent on The Epistle of St. Paul to the Philippians. This beautiful letter centers on the joy believers find in Christ even in the face of suffering and misfortune. It's a good choice to read during Lent as it calls us to reflect on how we are to live as Christians in the world. Philippians offers plenty of opportunity for us to take stock of our lives and to examine how well we are responding to Christ's call to follow him. The Bible study will take place on Wednesday evenings in Lent from 6:00 to 7:30. If you would like to participate, please register by calling the parish office so that we can have enough study materials available.

Thursday morning Bible Study will begin Thursday, February 19th after the 8:30 a.m. Mass at St. Teresa. Please plan to join us if you can! No commitment— give it a try!

Respect Life

This past Thursday was the annual March for Life at our nation's capital. People from all over the country came to pray and show their support for the over 57 million lives lost to abortion and to pray for the pre-born children that are not safe in their mother's womb. But there is Good News for those hurting from abortion.

The Silent No More organization released a new project called "Healing the Shockwaves of Abortion" on January 8th. The aim of Shockwaves is to reach out to those impacted by the loss of a child through abortion: parents, grandparents, siblings, friends, abortion workers, and even the abortionists themselves. Do you need resources for healing and help? Do you know of others who may need help? See <http://www.silentnomoreawareness.org/shockwaves/> for more information.

Options for Women: Mankato is a nonprofit organization formed to meet the need in the Mankato area for positive alternatives for women making difficult decisions related to unplanned pregnancy. We are part of the TLC federation of centers and clinics that provide women facing unplanned pregnancy confidential, practical services; most at no cost. Options for Women: Mankato is dedicated to assisting those involved in a pregnancy with life-affirming choices, by providing confidential counseling, resources, education and limited medical services in a respectful, caring and professional environment before, during and after pregnancy.
